Personal Profile:

I would summarize myself as a happy and fortunate person. My objectives are to add back as much to society as I am able through my employment and charitable endeavors. Certain skills can be taught and mastered; personal traits like a strong commitment to community, motivation to succeed through a positive work ethic, and leadership abilities are in born and honed over a lifetime of experiences. I eagerly embrace change, enjoy challenges, and thrive on variety. I enjoy grant writing and finding projects which match well with philanthropic foundations so in this way, we can all work together to make our world a better place.
